An energy audit will save you as much as 30 percent on your yearly bills.

money when compared to inferior products that must be replaced more frequently, and so they thereby reduce the amount of waste we are putting into landfills.

 Re-using also makes good sense. Every year, Americans drink more than 100 billion cups of coffee. Approximately 15 billion disposable paper cups are thrown away. That's enough cups, when placed end to end, to wrap around the earth 56 times...annually. Instead, get yourself a stainless steel mug and you'll find that most coffee vendors offer customers a twenty-cent discount. At five cups a week that's a savings of $52 a year.

 The average home emits about twice as much CO2 compared to the average car. Edison offers a free energy survey at sce.com/survey. Further, an energy audit will save you as much as 30 percent on your yearly bills. Visit eere.energy.gov.

 Roughly half of our home energy expenses come from cooling. That means air conditioning units must be serviced bi-annually and air filters changed at least twice a year. See energystar.gov for details. By setting your summer thermostat to 79 degrees you'll save $300 a year.

 Also, put your clothes—after washing them in cold water only—out to air-dry and you'll save an additional $300 annually.

 Use a smart power strip to plug in as many home electronic devices that have a standby mode as possible. Then turn the power switch off whenever you're not using them and you'll reduce your power bill by a further five to 15 percent. That can
